

Local legend

The Historic Preservation Commission presented its fourth and fifth Local Legends Award at last week's city council meeting. Joe Lee Johnson, left, was one of the recipients of the award, which honors those who have had a positive and lasting impact on the culture, development and history of Round Rock. Johnson was a graduate and the last principal of Hopewell School, which integrated into the Round Rock ISD in 1966. Robert Brinkman, right, a member of the Historic Preservation Commission, presented the award to Johnson.
