The Historic Preservation Commission recognized the Old Settlers Association as the first recipient of its Local Legends Award. The award, which honors those who have had a positive and lasting impact on the culture, development and history of Round Rock, was presented to the Old Settlers Association at its reunion Saturday.

Taking part in the presentation, from left, are Ray Amaro and Nina Krienke Turner of the commission, J.E. Moore, president of the Old Settlers Association, and George McAdams, Robert Brinkman and Berry Sullivan of the commission. See Monday's Leader to learn the next recipient of a Local Legends Award.
